Race remains the challenge of the 21st century. White folks wonder why, despite diversity trainings and outreach efforts, interracial interactions are often tense: they feel that, "no matter how hard I try, I can't seem to get it right."

Understanding Whiteness/Unraveling Racism is a workshop designed to help turn the lens on a crucial aspect of diversity, one which is often neglected. We bring this topic to a mixed racial/ethnic group to raise consciousness about the role of "whiteness" in diversity work. The workshop is a non-threatening experience that encourages white participants and participants of color to come to a new consciousness around white identity.

This Understanding Whiteness/Unraveling Racism Workshop is offered at no charge to the public as part of Sonoma County Race Equality Week.
